

Astrid Heligonda Roemer

Curriculum vitae 1947–2026

1947	Was born in Paramaribo, Suriname, on April 27.
1966	Went to The Netherlands to complete her training to become a teacher.
1970	Using the pseudonym Zamani, published her first literary work, a poetry collection called Sasa: mijn actuele zijn .
1974	Published her first novel, Neem mij terug, Suriname .
1975	Settled in The Netherlands.
1982	Got her breakthrough in the Dutch literary world with the novel Over de gekte van een vrouw , which, 40 years later, would be rediscovered and recognized as a “classic of queer literature”.
1985	Published NoordzeeBlues , her most lauded poetry collection.
1996–1999	Published Gewaagd leven (1996), Lijken op liefde (1997) and Was getekend (1999), a trilogy of “decolonization novels” that has become known as ‘Roemer’s Triplets’ and that is widely recognized as her magnum opus.
1999	Könnte Liebe sein (1998), the German translation of Lijken op liefde (1997), received the LiBeraturpreis, a German literary prize for outstanding works of fiction by women writers from the global south.
1999–2016	Withdrew to a secluded life; lived variously in The Netherlands, Suriname, Italy, Scotland, and Belgium; wrote an occasional story, radio play, or essay, but no novels or other major works.
2015	A documentary film about Roemer’s life, Astrid H. Roemer: De wereld heeft gezicht verloren , was released in The Netherlands.
2016	Received the P.C. Hooftprijs [P.C. Hooft Award], a Netherlands-based lifetime-achievement award for literature in Dutch. Roemer was the first Surinamese writer to receive it.
2021	Received the Prijs der Nederlandse Letteren [Dutch Literature Award], a lifetime achievement award for writers from The Netherlands, Belgium or Suriname, which is considered the most prestigious literary award in the Dutch-speaking world. Roemer was the first Surinamese writer to receive it.
2023	Published Dealers dochter , which became her last literary publication.
2023	On a Woman’s Madness (San Francisco, USA: Two Lines Press, 2023), the English translation of Over de gekte van een vrouw (1982), was a finalist for the National Book Award for Translated Literature, which recognizes books of fiction or non-fiction translated into English and published by a US publisher.
2025	On a Woman’s Madness (London, UK: Tilted Axis Press, 2024) was longlisted for the International Booker Prize, a literary award for the best work of fiction translated into English and published in the UK or Ireland.
2025	Over de gekte van een vrouw was translated into Portuguese as Sobre a loucura de uma mulher (São Paulo, Brazil: Companhia das Letras), and Roemer became the first Surinamese writer to participate in FLIP, the International Literary Festival of Paraty, Brazil.
2026	Passed away in Paramaribo, Suriname, on January 8.